Private Wealth Management (2)

The wealth of many individuals and families is often concentrated in a limited number of securities, business holdings, or real estate properties. The sale of concentrated positions to facilitate desired diversification may not be feasible or may create a substantial tax liability. Dealing with concentrated single asset positions is the subject of the first reading in this study session.

The second reading examines the dynamics of human and financial capital and the challenge of meeting financial goals throughout an investor's lifetime. It specifically addresses investment strategies and financial products structured to mitigate the risk of not achieving these goals.
